To the Hon. Commissioner of Prisons
Dear Sir,

This is news to me that Juttle received his injury in a scuffle.
It is not true, Capt Juttle is a honorable reliable man, and as near as I can remember. He was ordering his company on he is in doubt, and in giving true orders to one of his men who was near he he slipped, falling suddenly to the ground, fracturing a rib, this a few days he was discharged from the Hospital where I treated him
for medical and William Lewis and he had not recovered his strength.

good likeness and brief history
of Clement:—

CAPTAIN DANIEL TUTTLE.

We are happy in presenting to the eye of the public, and especially to his comrades in war and peace, so truthful a likeness of the Captain.

His modesty prevents our noticing all the good points of his face.

The twinkle of his eye is somewhat concealed. The humor of his mouth is kept in the background by the wise discretion of the artist.

We all recognize the man in the picture and give him a salvo of cheers.

He was born Feb. 14, 1814, on the heights which overlook the village and town, one of the oldest of a large family of children. His father, Francis Tuttle, Esq., was for a long time an officer and influential citizen of the place.

He was elected captain of the Davis Guards in the years 1855-'57-'59-'61. He was twice postmaster. He was forty-seven years old at the outbreak of the war, and exempt by age from military duty.

He was a Breckenridge Democrat in the preceding canvass for the Presidency against Lincoln.

He had at the time a large farm on his hands, a wife and numerous children, some of them young.

At the opening of a new season and with all his cares so pressing, it seemed impossible for him to leave.

Yet when the summons came, there was but one decision.

We are glad for his sake and for the sake of the regiment so endeared to him, that the reunion is this year at Acton, the place of his birth and life.

From the evidence now in this case and especially authorities G, H, O, P, A, D, I am of the opinion that Clement broke or fractured his ribs in the service while wrestling or scuffling with Geo. Fay Campbell of his co. at the same time I do not think that

BASIS OF CLAIM.

Alleges in declaration filed July 1st 1881 that while in line of duty at Relay House Md June 18th 1861 Contracted bilious fever and sent to Regt Hospital under care of Surgeon Smith After returning to duty and while drilling his Co, slipped and fell striking left side against a stone fracturing two ribs, did no further duty and continued under Surgeon Smith's treatment while he remained in service, for liver trouble and injury, claims pension for liver disease and resulting rheumatism, broken ribs and resulting effects. Claimant with his name 180 111 C

I, Daniel Tuttle, hereby certify as follows, in answer to attached letter of 3^d inst. as follows - my Co. was falling in for drill, & I was just outside my tent on my way to the front of the Co. some soldier passing just then, who he was I do not know or remember either, pushed against me or tripped me, or I slipped & fell, & received the broken ribs as alleged. I had just come from hospital weak & feeble from billious fever. it occurred in an instant - I certainly had no scuffle with any one - was taken into my tent in great pain. This is a simple statement of facts in my case. I certainly was in line of duty at the time. I honor Government question cause of the said injury, & for the present waive that part of my claim & ask action on the other disabilities named in declaration giving me further time to obtain evidence relative to injury to ribs.

The Hon. Commissioner of Pension.

Sir,
This is new to me that Capt Tuttle is recovering his injury in a scuffle, not true, Capt Tuttle is a very reliable man, and as far as I can remember he was in his company on line for me, and in giving me order he of his men who was near him, slipped, falling suddenly to the ground, fracturing a rib, this was after he was discharged from Hospital where I treated him. He had not recovered his strength.

Very truly,
Norman Smith, M.D.

" I suppose you have heard that Capt Tuttle has fractured a rib. He felt pretty well after his late sickness, and got into a little scuffle with Fay Campbell, and fell upon a stick, breaking one of the ribs of the left side. He is getting along well and was able to-day to walk about his room" by being very careful how he stepped. — — — — —
